GERMANY LAUNCHES HER FOURTH BIG EFFORT

STRIKES 35 MILE FRONT AMERICANS LIKELY HIT ALLIES CO-ORDINATING PARIS IS BOMBARDED

Germany massed her forces on the western front today, launching her fourth major effort of the great offensive to smash the Allied line. General Haig reported officially that the enemy struck with great force south of the Picardy region and northward toward Ypres. An assault south of Picardy was on a 35 mile front between Reims and Soissons.

Simultaneously the French were holding their ground at Loree south of Ypres. American forces are possibly in this theatre of the fighting. The Chemin de Dames sector which has been partially held by Americans for some time is in the Reims-Soissons sector. At intervals intense artillery preceded the infantry assaults. Incidentally Haig's report said that the British forces cooperated with the French south of the Picardy front—an indication that General Foch's plan for coordination of all the Allies is being carried out. This was the first intimation that British forces were located south of the Avre.

As their shock troops went forward in the first assault the Germans renewed their long range bombardment of Paris. Shells were dropped in or near the French capital.

In the last drive three long range guns being observed by French aviators were destroyed by French artillery and the bombardment of Paris ceased. The indications are that Germany has replaced one or more of the big guns.

Dispatches from Fred Ferguson reported increased enemy artillery activity against American forces in Picardy. Wm. Phillip Simms also declared in dispatches from the British front that enemy big guns roared with increased velocity.

General Pershing's casualty list contained the names of 19 Americans of whom 9 died in action, 4 died from wounds, 2 wounded severely, and 3 missing in action. None were from western Pennsylvania.

Ferguson's dispatches described the experiences of 50 American engineers who got caught in a German trench and were forced to fight their way back to their own lines against enemy and American rifle fire. The same dispatch reported that American and other Allied flyers recently raided enemy positions, dropping more than 20 tons of high explosives on military objectives. Forty bombing planes and 150 fighting planes participated in the raid.

Dispatches received from Wm. Phillip Simms this afternoon indicated that the Allied forces were holding the Amiens sector except in a few spots. The enemy attacked in waves and at some points was reported to have bent the Allied lines. It is too early, however, to know the actual result of the fighting. The heaviest fighting in the Flanders region was at Scheperberg, Simms said. (Simms' dispatches did not indicate any reference to the blow directed south of Picardy.)

THE FRENCH REPORT

Paris, May 27.—The Germans launched an attack this morning between Pinon forest, 9 miles northeast of Soissons, and Reims, the French war office reported. French and British troops are resisting with their customary valor. Several local German attacks were repulsed in Apremont Wood. Two German attacks also failed at Limey and in the neighborhood of Baden-Villers.

Apremont forest adjoins the American Toul front on the west. American and French troops are operating in this sector. Limey is on the eastern end of the Toul sector, 5 miles east of Seicheprey, where the heaviest fighting between the Americans and Germans has taken place since America has entered the war. Baden-Villers is in the Lunerville sector where Americans also are holding an appreciable front.

CARNWATH MINER GIVEN 48 HOURS TO LEAVE TOWN

Carnwath, Pa., May 27.—Every miner and day worker in the mines of this town, with one exception, has contributed one day's wages to the Second Ward Fund drive. The man who refused to contribute has in the recent past made some nasty remarks about the women of the Red Cross repeating to some extent the nasty nasty remarks about the women of the Red Cross repeating to some extent the nasty nasty remarks which were circulated early in the war. An indignation meeting was held by the citizens of the town at which time it was charged that he had not bought any Liberty Bonds, that he was a deserter from the United States army in 1905 and it was decided that he was no longer a desirable resident of the town. In the meantime a rope was procured, placed about his neck and in this manner he was paraded about the town, led by two women solicitors of the Red Cross. Mr. James Gray superintendent of mines, has notified the offending miner that his services are no longer desired and that the people of the village will give him 48 hours to leave the town. The man's name is withheld. He has a family and children.

NOVEL AND UNIQUE CHURCH SERVICES

The service at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning was most unique and was thoroughly enjoyed by the entire congregation.

The service was of a patriotic nature and splendid talks were given by Mrs. George Reed, Prof. John Taylor, Fred G. Betts, J. Fred Weaver and Judge Singleton Bell on the subjects of "Our Duty in Conservation, to the Red Cross, Y. C. A., Our Allies and Our Own Boys." C. W. Howard and Ernest Peterson led in prayer.

Last night's musical evening at the Presbyterian church was well attended even though the humidity was high and was not at all conducive to comfort.

It would be hard to single out any one number for a special word of praise as the entire program was one of excellence throughout. Every number was artistically rendered and the comments of the audience were gratifying indeed.

These musical evenings are popular with the members of the church and make a very pleasant change in the church work.

COMMITTED SUICIDE SUNDAY

Donald Ahnschoff, aged 54, who resided near Phillipsburg, committed suicide Sunday morning by shooting himself through the neck. He had been acting queerly for several days and in the absence of his wife Sunday morning secured his shot gun and lying down on the floor in the parlor of his home placed the muzzle of the gun against his neck and pulled the trigger. His death was instantaneous.

THE "GIMME CLUB" IN FRANCE

The Pittsburgh Gazette Times yesterday published a group picture of the "Gimme Club" in France. When one of the boys receives a box of "goodies" from home he divides evenly with the other three.

The club is composed of Corporal George Fehl, of Clearfield; Corporal Eugene P. Frey, of Pittsburgh; Privates J. S. Fink, of Altoona, and Leo P. Page, of Woodbury, N. J. They are all members of Company B, Nineteenth Engineers and have been in France since last August. George Fehl is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fehl of Daisy street.

Lady Northcliffe, wife of the English publisher and statesman, has been decorated with the grand cross of the British Empire for her untiring efforts in alleviating the sufferings of wounded soldiers.

BRIDGE CLUB WILL MEET

The hospital bridge club will meet Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Mrs. H. P. Dowler at her home on W. Market street.

THIS $20,000 MUST BE RAISED. THE DRIVE MUST BE EXTENDED UP TO AND INCLUDING MEMORIAL DAY

Many complaints are coming in from people who claim they have not been called on. There will be a meeting at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow, Tuesday, at 8 p. m. At this meeting the list of prospects will again be read and such prospects as have been solicited will be checked. A list of those WHO HAVE NOT been solicited will then be made. It is vitally important that every person who did any soliciting be PRESENT. This means everybody.

Executive Committee 2nd Red Cross War Fund

WHAT OTHER TOWNS ARE DOING FOR THE RED CROSS WAR FUND

Bishtown

This town has two enthusiastic Red Cross workers in Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Lansberry.

This estimable couple have worked with a vim for the furtherance of the "greatest Mother of them all" as the Red Cross has been justly styled on some of the posters which have been produced for this drive.

Mrs. Lansberry was sort of independent about asking A. B. for money so she went ahead and engineered an ice cream social which netted $14.40 for the cause.

Then Mr. Lansberry got busy among the miners who work at his mine and they were found to be Simon pure Americans whether they were born here or not and they turned in $147 to the cause.

This made A. B. sit up and take notice and what does he do? He followed the dictates of his heart and guided by this writes out a check for $100 to be turned into the treasury.

Again, they are building a bit of a railroad siding into some of the mines down that way and our townsman Sam Toney, who while not a home-grown American is a lot better than some that have never crossed the pond, went around among his employees and added another $45 to the fund which brings the total up to $306.40 from this practically one source.

That's going some and would that there were more people in our district that were taking this work as much to heart as has been done in this instance.

Center Hill and Grahampton

There was a meeting here on Saturday night. Chairman Beveridge and his corps were massed and made a drive that landed this district in the contending for honors in the smaller sections. Will Huiley, one of Beveridge's able lieutenants was a king headquarters for supplies on Saturday so that his troops must be making steady advances as the drive progresses.

Congress Hill, Bald Hill and Surveyor

Kyle Murray, Andy Montileth, Rebecca Smith and Dr. Lewis are the aides de camp of the chairman for these places and the way these folks are laying down barages and shooting the big ones is a caution to snakes. They claim that they have good reason to believe that this territory will gain more ground in this drive than in the former effort which is sure some good work.

McGarvey's Ridge

Tom McGarvey is commander-in-chief of the forces elected to make this sector 100 per cent liberal. Tom reports everything quiet with considerable ground-gaining the order for the day.

Five Points

Rev. M. M. Snyder, Mrs. Thurston and Albert McGarvey are all going through the enemy lines and are quietly taking position after position as the present drive advances. In their last communique they claim to have routed the enemy and are placing themselves in the first line trenches where they will hold on in the endeavor to be right there when the totals are in.

East Ridge and Harmony

There was a meeting of the clan here and they decided to tell the Hun what they thought of him by slapping the dollars right down to aid the boys through "the greatest Mother of them all". When these good folks get their Harmony disturbed by the idea of the boys being in need they have a method of making the sweetest harmony that could be heard in the ears of the local headquarters.

Burnside and Stüertown

Miss Minnie McCaule who had command of this sector has been unavoidably absent during this drive but headquarters secured the services of Miss Mary Patrick who has buckled her armor on and the enemy may as well consider himself, herself or itself routed right now. Miss Mary is right there with the hustle and will have some great little report to hand in at the completion of the drive.

Faunce

General Archie Moyer marshalled his cohorts and told them what was what when the drive first started. Archie must be some little "teller" for the reports coming in are gratifying indeed. Just a little more pep up that way and Faunce will be among the leaders.

Bigler

Down here in this little brick town, the game has been going on for some time and W. D. Walker is at the bat. He is sure some hitter and his average is being fattened up some by the aides de camp of the chairman for showing he and his team are making in this game. They are putting last year's figures way back in the book and working for something this year that will be a mark for some one to shoot at in years to come.

West Decatur

This busy town comonly talked of as Blue Ball is raising some dust as the drive passes along. In every one of the industrial plants the men have taken to the day's wage plan like the proverbial duck to water. The townsfolk meaning, of course, the

PRESIDENT WILSON VISITS CONGRESS AND ASKS QUICK ACTION ON TAX BILL

Washington, May 27.—President Wilson's war finance policy contemplates raising 40 per cent. for revenue by taxation and 60 per cent. by bonds, it was learned today. A memorandum written by the President and given to Senator Simmons and Representative Kitchen suggested this proposition to finance the war. The tax bill would raise 4 million more than the present one and would augur a six billion bond issue in the fall.

By Robert J. Bender

Washington, May 27.—President Wilson today called upon Congress to sacrifice political expediency and draft a tax bill. Appearing before a joint session on Washington's hottest day of the year the President found an audience of seons distinctly disgruntled at the prospect of prespiring over a revenue measure this summer. It was the second strictly business message the President has delivered before Congress since we got into the war.

The President declared that we are at the peak and crisis of the war and that the people are ready and willing to bear any burdens and to undergo any sacrifices necessary to win. Politics, he said, are adjourned and the coming election will go to those who think least about them. Profiteering that cannot be gotten at by a tax, the President declared. He said that America's greatest bond issue will be floated next fall.

good women who can always be depended on to do their utmost, are answering the appeal as they always do and the reports from here are sweet music down at headquarters.

McGees Mills

The way this one William McGee is taking a shot at that unspeakable other Bill via the Red Cross shows that OUR Bill is some sharpshooter. On Saturday Will asked for a meeting and as we close up this story the headquarters are planning a meeting up at the Mills.

Little question about McGees Mills reaching its quota—it's just a problem of how much over they can turn in. That's the way they're working here.

Clover Run and Newtonburg

You ought to hear some of the reports that General Alex Caldwell and his able lieutenants, Annibaldi and Appel are turning in from here. They must be working night and day up there. Never has such enthusiasm been shown in any cause and these men are leaving nothing undone to make this drive something that will go down in history as a memorable occasion.

TIPS FROM THE TICKET...

New York, May 27.—Rails were higher and industrials lower at the opening of the stock market today. United States steel was off 5-8 to 106 1/2 and Baldwin locomotives was off 1-2 at 90 1-2. FARMERS AND WAR DRIVES

In a recent issue The Progress printed a news story reciting as an example the refusal of a Lawrence township farmer to contribute to the Second War Fund Drive. It has come to our notice that some of the farmers of this district object to that article and investigation of the complaint discloses the fact that the objection is based on the paragraph which reads as follows:

"While there are a few specimens of this kind hereabouts there are a lot of other fellows who think they are doing a personal favor when they come across with a measly two or five dollar subscription."

In the beginning let us explain that the simple fact that the subject of our story was a farmer is indeed no reflection on the farmers of this community. We know hundreds of them who have given "until it hurts" and many more who gave just what the committee suggested that they should give. On the other hand we know lots of men, including farmers, who really are making a greater sacrifice by giving a dollar than his neighbor who gives ten dollars.

It was not our intention to criticize or embarrass the man who could give only two or five dollars but there are a few who argued and parried with the committees for as long as twenty minutes and then expected a "God bless you" when they finally condescended to pass over a five dollar bill.

There is no longer any room or time for argument on the matter of these war drives. Every man should have his own mind made up in anticipation of the solicitor and this decision should be one that will insure peace and quiet when one lies down at night and ponders over the acts of the day. Regardless of printed or spoken word the man who can lie down at night and satisfy his own conscience is the one who has done all that he could.

HOUSEWIVES

Many times we have heard the good housewives of this community wonder what they are going to do with all the flour substitutes that they must buy in order to get wheat flour. Others we are sorry to say, are feeding the substitutes to the chickens and to the stock. This practice is worse than a lack of patriotism and we only hope for the day when it will be a criminal offense to do so. There are ways in which every pound of wheat flour substitute can be used and used to advantage. Thousands of families are now doing it and more than that there are thousands of families who are buying no wheat flour and using all substitutes. Ignorance or a willful refusal to learn to bake and cook by war methods and war standards are the only causes of a condition where the housewife does not know what to do with the substitutes she buys. This, as has been the case with other statements made in this column, may be insulting to those who have not obeyed the spirit of the food rulings but it is fact and if you do not believe it we can only suggest that you go to the Cooking and Baking Demonstration sponsored by Lauderbach-Zerby, wholesale grocers of this city. This firm sells practically all the groceries used in this city and they are very anxious to see every pound of substitute used to "win the war".

HEARD FINE SERMON PHEASANTS MUST BE RELEASED

Larimer Post G. A. R. attended services at the Lutheran church yesterday and were regaled with a fine sermon by Rev. C. W. Baker, the pastor. The fast thinning ranks of "the brave boys in blue" were sadly recalled to the church people when but ten grey-haired old veterans appeared in the line-up.

SWEENEY WINS BY OFFICIAL COUNT SHOWS JONES TO BE WINNER FOR CONGRESS

The official count shows that Mr. H. H. Sweeney of Houtzdale, is the victor for the county chairmanship of the Republican party by a margin of 19 votes out of a total of 3581 cast. It gives us pleasure to be able to print a picture of the man who is to direct the political campaign for the Republican party this fall. Mr. Sweeney is a courteous and able gentleman and we predict that under his leadership this county will roll up a great Republican majority this fall which will place Clearfield county in the ranks of solid, rock ribbed Republican counties.

HEINZ PLEADS FOR ELIMINATION OF FANCY DINNERS

Philadelphia, May 27.—Howard Heinz, federal food administrator for Pennsylvania, made an emphatic statement yesterday regarding the waste of food which he believes may occur in too many instances, in private homes through elaborate dinner parties, and at public entertainments in the shape of costly banquets. He said:

"At intervals for months past, I have read in the columns of the daily newspapers of the state accounts of elaborate private entertainments, the way of luncheons, dinners and similar functions in which there doubtless is, in at least some instances, a great and unnecessary waste. The food is often prepared and served on such occasions in such a way that it is practically impossible to utilize any of the remains of the banquet or make available for use the food in any other form."

"Our people should refrain from elaborate dinners and social entertainments where costly meals are a feature. This class of social functions should be marked by wartime simplicity. In all things there should be strict observance of food administration rules. The number of extra meals should be minimized. They are, for the most part, unnecessary. We are at war. The families of England have meat only twice a week. In France the population between 15 and 60 years of age is permitted to have only one and a half slices of bread per day per person. To win the war we must not only preach conservation but practice it."

"I am not opposing the idea of private dinners, public banquets or social functions, but I insist that wartime simplicity should prevail at them by moderation in the number of courses served. I urge upon our people that dinner, luncheon and banquet should be an example to the world of rigid conservation of food. Portions should be smaller. They should be prepared and served in accordance with food laws. Articles of diet not on the restricted list should be used."

"At commercial and business gatherings an example should be set and a menu in accordance with the strict requirements of the war-times in which we live be offered."

Food waste is a crime. It is a crime against the starving millions of Europe, who are asking us for food; it is a crime against our soldiers and the soldiers of our allies, who are fighting for us on the battle fields of Europe."

The ladies who can help in providing flowers for soldiers graves please come to the court house, Wednesday morning, May 29th. Bring or send flowers to the information room in the court house as early as you can.

Finland Has Right to Be Welcomed Among the World's Republics—Its Great National Epic.

Finland of today is a prosperous and rapidly developing country, inhabited by an enterprising, progressive and hospitable people. The population is, roughly speaking, 2,000,000. Dairy farming has become one of the most important industries. It is more profitable than the raising of grains because of the uncertainty of the seasons. There is absolutely no reason why the republic of Finland should not be a success, if left undisturbed by more powerful and ambitious neighbors. The people are intelligent, democratic and frugal, and have had enough experience in self-government to be of great help in solving the various perplexing problems that are sure to arise. There is no logical reason why they should be subjects of Slavic Russia. Hence the republic of Finland should be welcomed among nations of the world.

We are indebted to Finnish literature for the inspiration of one of our great poems by one of our sweetest singers, Nordin O. Winter writes in the Christian Herald. Without a written literature, there was handed down from father to son for many generations in Finland a great national epic. In the long winter evenings the singers sat beside the burning pine logs and there sang snatches from this epic. Finally there appeared one Elias Lonnrot, a simple country physician, who traveled over the country and collected this unwritten epic from the memories of hundreds of these singers. He called the collection the Kalevala and it was first published in 1835. Longfellow copied the style in his "Hiawatha."

IRREPARABLE LOSS TO WORLD

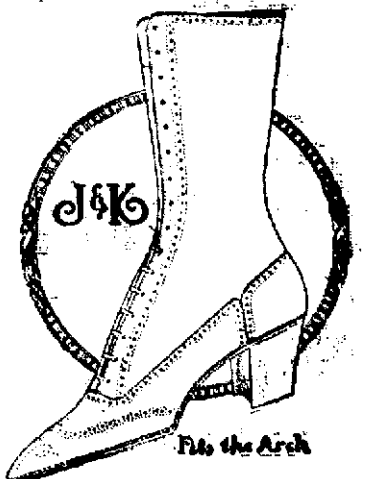

Literary Treasures Destroyed by the Flood at Louvain Can Never Be Replaced.

No reparation can restore to the world the galleries where Charles V. ruler of almost all Europe, poured over old learning, asserts the Toronto Mail and Empire. There is no way to replace the 250,000 manuscripts which went up in smoke and ashes on Aug. 27, 1914. Manhood is permanently poorer by the destruction of complete sets of all sixteenth-century editions of Virgil, nineteen sixteenth-century editions of Terence, ten of Sallust, complete sixteenth-century editions of Tacitus, Seneca, Martial, Ovid, Horace, Juvenal, Livy, Lucian, Lactantius, Cicero and Caesar. Rare copies of Aristotle and the inextinguishable Greeks are lost forever; priceless early Bibles, whole libraries of ecclesiastical history and civil laws, texts illuminated and initiated and bordered by the patient labor of Spanish, German and Lombard monks. "Here was the truth regarding the Spanish Conquest and the grip of the Inquisition." There were authentic treasures also.

IRELAND AND HER TROUBLES

New York, May 27.—The latest attempted uprising in Ireland brings once again into the limelight that land of saints and martyrs, of heroes who have never hesitated to shed their blood in the sacred cause of liberty, and whose magnificent fighting qualities have been displayed on many a bloody field where British arms have triumphed.

Prompted by the machinations of Germany, the several Irish uprisings since the beginning of the present war, including the rebellion which drenched Dublin in blood two years ago, appear to be foredoomed to failure like the similar outbreaks in the past, owing to misguided leaders and the lack of united sentiment among the Irish people themselves.

The first great Irish rebellion occurred in 1798. The leading figure in it was the misguided patriot, Napper Tandy, the hero of that popular ballad, "The Wearing of the Green." Tandy, accompanied by General Rey, a French officer who was to lead the Irish people when they flocked to the standard of revolt, landed near Arvan with 45 French soldiers and a quantity of arms. Instead of joining the invaders, the Irish peasantry fled to the mountains, and thus ended the attempted deliverance of Ireland.

No greater success attended Smith O'Brien's "rebellion" in 1848. O'Brien gathered a multitude of followers, who ultimately attacked a body of police near Ballinacorney. The police put the disorganized peasants to flight, and with this fiasco the "insurrection" ended.

Another abortive rising of the same kind was associated with the expedition of John F. Kavanagh in 1867. It consisted of a brigantine, the Jackel, with a force of 40 or 50 Irishmen who had served in the Federal armies during the American civil war, and with about 5,000 rifles and a few field guns.

The Jackel left New York and arrived safely off the coast of Donegal, where she was boarded by a Fenian, who brought the discouraging news that a general rising was hopeless. So most members of the force returned to New York. The others were landed by a fishing-boat at the entrance to Dungarvan Bay, where all were arrested a few days later. Two of the men, on being tried for treason, proved that, though born in Ireland, they were naturalized Americans, and as such could not be tried for or convicted of treason. But they were nevertheless convicted and sentenced to long terms, the court holding that the English law did not recognize the right of any person to transfer his allegiance to another country. In consequence of a protest by the United States Government, however, both men were ultimately sent back to America.

Wolfe Tone's effort to rouse his countrymen were also, pitiable failures. In 1798 this famous leader, in company with General Hoche, sailed from Brest at the head of a considerable expedition, consisting of 6,500 troops and large quantities of arms and ammunition. The fleet, with the exception of one ship, reached Hantury Bay, but before Tone and his followers could land a storm sprang up, and eventually the invaders found themselves back again at Brest.

Subsequently a larger expedition left France—one of the most disastrous that ever sailed for Ireland. After being chased by a British squadron, and failing to land troops, it was brought into action off Bloody Foreland, with the result that nearly the whole of it was captured. Among those taken was Wolfe Tone, who was tried, convicted of treason and sentenced to be hanged. But he escaped this ignominious end. When in prison he cut his throat with a penknife, and died a week later.

Similar disaster attended the Emmet rebellion of 1803, the plans of which were adopted by the Sinn Feiners in 1916. For Emmet provided for street fighting in Dublin and made his chief objective the Castle. The uprising proved a total failure. Emmet paid the price of his folly on the scaffold. Yet he lives in the hearts of Irishmen, and wherever they are, whether in their own fair isle or far overseas, his name thrills them to the soul.

An advertisement appeared recently in the London newspapers inviting capital towards the foundation of a school for teaching women to fly.

BRITISH RESENT TRIBUTE PAID TO ENEMY FLYER

(By United Press)
London, May 27.—Baron Richtofen's military funeral behind the British lines and the tribute which British airmen accorded their dead nemesis have aroused some resentment in England.

Although Richtofen is regarded as having been a gallant enemy and a courageous fighter, his disinclination to honor the enemy, even to death, is more emphatic in his case than it has been in the cases of others just because Richtofen's career and death were unusually spectacular. His fanatical thus attracted more attention than the usual burial of a fallen enemy aviator, and the consequent objection is in proportion.

"If the Germans were gallant adversaries and gentlemen we wouldn't be fighting them," says one critic. "We would be able to come to terms with them. A gallant aviator would not try to stab us in the back, and a gentleman would keep his agreements."

"The Germans are not gallant adversaries. Frightfulness is their weapon. Lying is the inspiration of their diplomacy. We are fighting them because they are not gentlemen. 'Are we to waste our tears on the individuals who perish in trying to bring about the triumph of hate?'"

If Richtofen's successor is brought down he probably will have the same honors that the dead German ace has received, because the soldier in the field is the man who accords the honors while the critic at home merely makes suggestions. It has happened before.

Once some dead German sailors were brought ashore after a fight with some British destroyers. They were buried with honors, and a wreath from a British admiral called them a "Brave and Gallant Enemy." There was some indignation in England, but it got nowhere.

Richtofen was buried with the honors that men who had fought him chose to accord to him.

BANANAS DID IT!

(By United Press)
Columbus, O., May 27.—Credit bananas with one good fighter for Uncle Sam.

Walter Sheppard, 15, has succeeded in passing the physical examination for enlistment in the marine corps, although a few days ago he couldn't pass it.

After Walter had obtained the consent of his parents, he still had a hard fight ahead. He was several pounds too light to be admitted to the marines.

"Bananas will increase your weight," he was told, and he went in for bananas.

The first day he ate two dozen, the next day a dozen and a half, and the next day one dozen. Four pounds were gained. The patriotic grocer from whom he bought the fruit became interested, and gave the boy twice as many bananas as he gave other customers for the same price.

Friends held banana parties for the young patriot.

Walter carefully refrained from exercise that might reduce his weight, drank water and cream in wholesale quantities, and weighed many times a day. When the scales showed that the correct weight had been reached, he drank some more water, and set out for the recruiting station, eating bananas.

Now he has passed, and he's thru with bananas forever!

FOR BETTER ROADS

IMPROVING THE BAD SPOTS

Certain Small Ruts That Are Usually Wet and Soft Determine Load Farmer Can Carry.

The worst holes in the road always determine the load the farmer can market. No stretch of roadway is uniformly good, because every road has certain small spots that are usually soft and wet. These spots cause more trouble than the rest of the road combined. How these spots are to be improved depends on the character of the soil, and the nature of the country. Many such spots owe their character to a soft subsoil, due to springs. Before these roads can be permanently improved they must be underdrained. If a tile is laid in these places there will usually be no trouble in the future. The surface of the road should then be filled with dirt and crowned, so any surface water may run off. If this is done there will be no trouble from subsurface water.

Many roadways that are closed in with shade trees are bad. If a goodly portion of the scrub timber along these roads be removed, the ground will dry out and no trouble result. If the character of the soil is soft and pliable, so that it will not pack and remain firm, new material should be applied to the surface. The best and cheapest material for improving roads is gravel. Where gravel beds are accessible a day's work with a team and wagon will improve any roadbed permanently. If the soil is very sandy an 8-inch application of clay to the surface will effect wonders. The road patrol should spend a considerable portion of its time in remedying the bad spots in the road.

ANSWER TO PRISON PROBLEM

New York and Other States Have Tried Experiment of Using Convicts to Improve Roads.

New York and many of the Southern and Western states have tried the experiment of using convicts to improve highways—and it has worked to perfection. The official organ of the New York state prisoners says that "no man of all the inmates who went outside last year had a word of fault to find with his treatment. All are anxious to join these camps again. The freedom of movement and the excise shortens the time yet to do in a wonderful manner. Many states have found road work to be the answer to the prison problem. Colorado and California have rebuilt the better portion of their roads with prison labor, and besides feeding the inmates with an extra supply of food, it has also led to a lessening of time through provisions made by the farsighted legislators.

WIDE TIRES IMPROVE ROADS

They Have Same Effect on Country Highway as Roller on Field—Also Pull Easier.

Wide tires build up roads and save horse labor. They have the same effect upon a country road as a roller on a plowed field. On the other hand, the narrow tire cuts up a road like a disk. It has been found by actual test in this matter that the wide-tired wagon pulls easier in nearly all cases than the narrow-tired wagon. In deep mud on a country road the wide-tired wagon pulls 6.2 per cent easier. On the country road with a thin surface of mud or deep dust, however, the narrow tires pull 4.9 per cent easier. In a cornfield the wide tires pull 39.5 per cent easier, in a dry alfalfa field 17.7 per cent easier, and on a dry country road 10.2 per cent easier.

Ontario Makes Good Roads. The Province of Ontario has approximately 55,000 miles of roads. More than 40,000 miles have been treated and are in fairly good condition. About 20,000 miles are well graded, about 10,000 miles are surfaced with broken stone, and about 10,000 miles are surfaced with gravel.

All Roads Lead Home. All roads lead to home. You are not at fault if they are not good roads, but you are to blame if it's not a good home.

Ten that are wanted in New York City are to be held in a woman's police reserve corps.

HOW ABOUT THAT STRAWBERRY BED?

Because growers rarely see their fruits in the market they do not realize how much disease injures the keeping quality of strawberries, nor how it reduces returns to grower, shipper and merchant, and increases cost to the consumer. No plant diseases cause more serious losses than those which start decay in ripe fruits, destroying food produced at great expense. A careful study of strawberry fruit diseases, carried on for the last three years, shows that dry rot may be largely reduced by means within the reach of every grower, according to C. R. Orton, of the Pennsylvania State College.

Dry rot is a field trouble caused by gray mould. It is particularly common and destructive on fields which are usually wet, either from excessive rain or poor drainage.

This disease gives the berries a rather firm and somewhat discolored appearance. Berries of any age, green or ripe, may be attacked on the vines and the gray powdery mold is frequently seen growing on the outside of the berry. Not only berries, but at times leaf stems and blossoms, are affected by this fungus.

Although the gray mould grows rather slowly on ripe berries, and is not particularly important after picking, it may become very conspicuous through its ability to grow at refrigerator-car temperature. Its ability to develop on the top of the head makes it noticeable when the car is being examined by buyers, and often reduces the price.

Proper field drainage is the best method of control, and this disease can be further eliminated by discarding diseased berries after picking, says Mr. Orton.

FLY A CLEAN FLAG

By Edgar A. Guest
 "I heard the Old Flag say,
 As I passed it yesterday:
 Months ago your friendly hands
 Fastened me on slender strands
 And with patriotic love
 Placed me here to wave above
 You and yours, I heard you say
 In the long-departed day:
 One of all that's true and fine
 Above this house of mine;
 At the first at break of day
 And the last at night to say
 To the world this word of cheer:
 Loyalty abideth here."

On every wind that's blown
 Over your portal I have flown;
 Rain and snow have battered me;
 Storms at night have battered me;
 Dust of street and chimney stack,
 Day by day, have stained me black,
 And I've watched you passing there,
 Wondering how much you care.
 Have you noticed that your flag,
 To-day a wind-blown rag?
 Does your love so careless grown
 By the long neglect you've shown
 At you never raise your eye
 To the symbol that you fly?"

On which no stain has been,
 As my sign that you're unclear,
 I've answered in my shame,
 My head must lie the blame.
 With patriotic hands,
 Release you from your strands,
 And a spotless flag shall fly
 To greet each passerby.
 No more shall flag of mine
 Be a sad and sorry sign
 Telling all who look above
 I neglect the thing I love,
 And my flag of faith shall be
 A sign for every eye to see.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

BY MARY GRAHAM BAXTER

THE KETTLE'S TROUBLE.

"It's a perfect shame," said the kettle on the stove.

The Horrid Kettle Burned Her.

"What's a perfect shame?" asked the frying pan which was hanging on a hook beside the stove. "The child blamed it all on me," the kettle answered. "What child blamed it on you, and what do you mean by it?" asked the frying pan. "There, there!" said the water in the kettle, "don't get excited. I've said before it was that child and tell her so. I don't know real talk, I don't. I can sputter when I'm boiling, and bubble and slag. And when I'm free and not in the kettle I can do lots more. But talking is not one of the things I can do."

"Of course," said the frying pan, "we're interested to know what you can do, but we would like to hear what the kettle is angry about."

"I'm not angry," said the kettle. "I'm hurt. My poor porcelain feelings are most dreadfully hurt."

"Tell us all about it," said the frying pan. "It will make you feel better."

"Yes," said the water in the kettle, "tell your kitchen friends all about it. They're used to being dropped and burnt and they don't mind much of anything. Tell them this story and they'll feel sorry for you and will also cheer you up. You're becoming entirely too unhappy about this whole affair."

"Wouldn't you become unhappy if you had been accused of something you weren't responsible for?"

"I'm really to be sympathized with more than you. I was the guilty one," said the water.

"Please, please," called the frying pan.

"Yes," said the pancake turner, "don't talk among yourselves any more. Let us hear what it's all about."

"Go on with your story," said the water in the kettle. "The kitchen friends are weary of these delays."

"That's right, we are," agreed the frying pan.

"All right," said the kettle, "I'll tell you all what has hurt my feelings, and I'm sure you will all agree with me that your feelings would be hurt too if you were in my place."

"We've often been in your place," said the frying pan. "We go on the stove too when the meats are being cooked. And you're no special place. We're all shovelled around wherever the cook wants to put us. So there!"

"I mean," said the kettle sadly, "that if you had been in my place regarding my feelings and not my position on the stove."

"Oh, our feelings have been hurt too," said the frying pan, and the pancake turner agreed. "We've had everything imaginable happen to us."

"Let the kettle tell the story," said the water.

"Are you cool and calm now?" asked the kettle of the water.

"Quite cool," said the water. "But you mustn't blame me because I couldn't help being so hot. It was the fault of the fire. It made me get so warm and excited that I bubbled over."

"Then?" Now you're blaming us," said the fire. "I couldn't help it if they put sticks and coal and paper in me. They built me up so I would go."

"It's not our fault," said the sticks and coal and paper. "Without the match we couldn't have gone."

"Mean of you to blame me," said the match. "And besides I couldn't have lit it if it hadn't been for the cook who struck me on the side of the box."

"We still don't know what the trouble is," said the frying pan. "Stop abusing each other and tell us."

"A child," said the kettle, "tried to move me and in so doing she spilled some of the boiling water over herself."

"I wasn't quite boiling," said the water, "very near boiling I was, though."

"Don't interrupt," said the kettle. "You've caused me enough trouble. Well, the child got quite badly burned. It hurt awfully, for burns always do."

"Yes," said the butter, from the ice box in the corner of the kitchen, "she came to me to be comforted. Butter is excellent for burns."

"But she blamed me for burning her," said the kettle. "She said that 'the horrid old kettle burned her,' and it wasn't me at all."

And the water, fire, paper, sticks, coal and match each in turn said they were not to blame but only the cook was for starting the fire in the first place!

GET READY FOR DECORATION DAY

Don't forget that all organizations are very urgently requested to turn out for the parade on Decoration day at 1:30. The schools will all be out, and we have arranged a good program and as this is an unusual time we would like to have every person in the town out to these exercises, and all who can to take part in the parade. The Liberty Chorus composed of about 50 men will make its first appearance at the Court House corner at 1:30 sharp and all members are requested to be present, as the Glee club will also sing at the cemetery. The Italian band will lead the parade, and the Paradise Drum corps will assist, also Ellenberg's drum corps. Don't forget to be on hand promptly at 1:30.

All persons who can spare a few hours on Tuesday with an automobile are requested to go to the woods and secure some flowers and small branches of Hemlock or Spruce for the wreaths for the soldiers graves, as these will be made on Wednesday and distributed on the same day, so all who can are requested to assist in this matter.

All organizations going in the parade will report to J. Fred Weaver, chief marshal and the firemen will report to James Connelly chief. Those contributing automobiles report to John M. Chase, all schools parading report to Walter Welch for position in the parade, all others interested report to committee.

IRISH JOAN OF ARC ARRESTED

Maude Gonne McBride, who is reported under arrest by the British authorities, is generally known as the Iris Joan of Arc, owing to her remarkable and incessant fight for Irish liberty. Mrs. McBride is the widow of Maor McBride, who was executed two years ago for participating in the Dublin uprising. It is said that at one time, had she so chose, she might have become Lady Kitchener. The story is that Lord Kitchener met the fair Irish maid in Paris while returning from Egypt. He was smitten by her charms and sued for her hand. She accepted on condition that he would put aside his uniform in the English army and join her in her fight for free Ireland. It is scarcely necessary to add that the famous soldier would not agree to the conditions.

WHY THAT HEAVY MAIL

Somewhere in France, May 27.—Letter writing has become all the rage among the wounded U. S. Marines confined to the base hospitals here.

The reason is a French stenographer, a pretty one, too, who has volunteered to write letters home for her incapacitated American brothers.

The petite Parisienne makes a daily visit to the Marine hospitals for dictation—and the wounded devil dogs have suddenly become literary giants. They anxiously await her visits and fairly swamp her with mail.

"Gee, if I only had about three more aunts and six more cousins to write to," sighed one husky sea-soldier, as the pretty little "steno" moved on to the next cot.

GERMANY LAUNCHES HER FOURTH BIG EFFORT

STRIKES 35 MILE FRONT AMERICANS LIKELY HIT ALLIES CO-ORDINATING PARIS IS BOMBARDED

Germany massed her forces on the western front today, launching her fourth major effort of the great offensive to smash the Allied line. General Haig reported officially that the enemy struck with great force south of the Picardy region and northward toward Ypres. An assault south of Picardy was on a 35 mile front between Reims and Soissons.

Simultaneously the French were holding their ground at Loree south of Ypres. American forces are possibly in this theatre of the fighting. The Chemin de Dames sector which has been partially held by Americans for some time is in the Reims-Soissons sector. At intervals intense artillery preceded the infantry assaults. Incidentally Haig's report said that the British forces cooperated with the French south of the Picardy front—an indication that General Foch's plan for coordination of all the Allies is being carried out. This was the first intimation that British forces were located south of the Avre.

As their shock troops went forward in the first assault the Germans renewed their long range bombardment of Paris. Shells were dropped in or near the French capital.

In the last drive three long range guns being observed by French aviators were destroyed by French artillery and the bombardment of Paris ceased. The indications are that Germany has replaced one or more of the big guns.

Dispatches from Fred Ferguson reported increased enemy artillery activity against American forces in Picardy. Wm. Phillip Simms also declared in dispatches from the British front that enemy big guns roared with increased velocity.

General Pershing's casualty list contained the names of 19 Americans of whom 9 died in action, 4 died from wounds, 2 wounded severely, and 3 missing in action. None were from western Pennsylvania.

Ferguson's dispatches described the experiences of 50 American engineers who got caught in a German trench and were forced to fight their way back to their own lines against enemy and American rifle fire. The same dispatch reported that American and other Allied flyers recently raided enemy positions, dropping more than 20 tons of high explosives on military objectives. Forty bombing planes and 150 fighting planes participated in the raid.

Dispatches received from Wm. Phillip Simms this afternoon indicated that the Allied forces were holding the Amiens sector except in a few spots. The enemy attacked in waves and at some points was reported to have bent the Allied lines. It is too early, however, to know the actual result of the fighting. The heaviest fighting in the Flanders region was at Scheperberg, Simms said. (Simms' dispatches did not indicate any reference to the blow directed south of Picardy.)

THE FRENCH REPORT

Paris, May 27.—The Germans launched an attack this morning between Pinon forest, 9 miles northeast of Soissons, and Reims, the French war office reported. French and British troops are resisting with their customary valor. Several local German attacks were repulsed in Apremont Wood. Two German attacks also failed at Limey and in the neighborhood of Baden-Villers.

Apremont forest adjoins the American Toul front on the west. American and French troops are operating in this sector. Limey is on the eastern end of the Toul sector, 5 miles east of Seicheprey, where the heaviest fighting between the Americans and Germans has taken place since America has entered the war. Baden-Villers is in the Lunerville sector where Americans also are holding an appreciable front.

CARNWATH MINER GIVEN 48 HOURS TO LEAVE TOWN

Carnwath, Pa., May 27.—Every miner and day worker in the mines of this town, with one exception, has contributed one day's wages to the Second Ward Fund drive. The man who refused to contribute has in the recent past made some nasty remarks about the women of the Red Cross repeating to some extent the nasty nasty remarks about the women of the Red Cross repeating to some extent the nasty nasty remarks which were circulated early in the war. An indignation meeting was held by the citizens of the town at which time it was charged that he had not bought any Liberty Bonds, that he was a deserter from the United States army in 1905 and it was decided that he was no longer a desirable resident of the town. In the meantime a rope was procured, placed about his neck and in this manner he was paraded about the town, led by two women solicitors of the Red Cross. Mr. James Gray superintendent of mines, has notified the offending miner that his services are no longer desired and that the people of the village will give him 48 hours to leave the town. The man's name is withheld. He has a family and children.

NOVEL AND UNIQUE CHURCH SERVICES

The service at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning was most unique and was thoroughly enjoyed by the entire congregation.

The service was of a patriotic nature and splendid talks were given by Mrs. George Reed, Prof. John Taylor, Fred G. Betts, J. Fred Weaver and Judge Singleton Bell on the subjects of "Our Duty in Conservation, to the Red Cross, Y. C. A., Our Allies and Our Own Boys." C. W. Howard and Ernest Peterson led in prayer.

Last night's musical evening at the Presbyterian church was well attended even though the humidity was high and was not at all conducive to comfort.

It would be hard to single out any one number for a special word of praise as the entire program was one of excellence throughout. Every number was artistically rendered and the comments of the audience were gratifying indeed.

These musical evenings are popular with the members of the church and make a very pleasant change in the church work.

COMMITTED SUICIDE SUNDAY

Donald Ahnschoff, aged 54, who resided near Phillipsburg, committed suicide Sunday morning by shooting himself through the neck. He had been acting queerly for several days and in the absence of his wife Sunday morning secured his shot gun and lying down on the floor in the parlor of his home placed the muzzle of the gun against his neck and pulled the trigger. His death was instantaneous.

THE "GIMME CLUB" IN FRANCE

The Pittsburgh Gazette Times yesterday published a group picture of the "Gimme Club" in France. When one of the boys receives a box of "goodies" from home he divides evenly with the other three.

The club is composed of Corporal George Fehl, of Clearfield; Corporal Eugene P. Frey, of Pittsburgh; Privates J. S. Fink, of Altoona, and Leo P. Page, of Woodbury, N. J. They are all members of Company B, Nineteenth Engineers and have been in France since last August. George Fehl is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fehl of Daisy street.

Lady Northcliffe, wife of the English publisher and statesman, has been decorated with the grand cross of the British Empire for her untiring efforts in alleviating the sufferings of wounded soldiers.

At this meeting the list of prospects will again be read and such prospects as have been solicited will be checked. A list of those WHO HAVE NOT been solicited will then be made. Executive Committee 2nd Red Cross War Fund

WHAT OTHER TOWNS ARE DOING FOR THE RED CROSS WAR FUND

Bishtown

This town has two enthusiastic Red Cross workers in Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Lansberry.

This estimable couple have worked with a vim for the furtherance of the "greatest Mother of them all" as the Red Cross has been justly styled on some of the posters which have been produced for this drive.

Mrs. Lansberry was sort of independent about asking A. B. for money so she went ahead and engineered an ice cream social which netted $14.40 for the cause.

Then Mr. Lansberry got busy among the miners who work at his mine and they were found to be Simon pure Americans whether they were born here or not and they turned in $147 to the cause.

This made A. B. sit up and take notice and what does he do? He followed the dictates of his heart and guided by this writes out a check for $100 to be turned into the treasury.

Again, they are building a bit of a railroad siding into some of the mines down that way and our townsman Sam Toney, who while not a home-grown American is a lot better than some that have never crossed the pond, went around among his employees and added another $45 to the fund which brings the total up to $306.40 from this practically one source.

That's going some and would that there were more people in our district that were taking this work as much to heart as has been done in this instance.

Center Hill and Grahampton

There was a meeting here on Saturday night. Chairman Beveridge and his corps were massed and made a drive that landed this district in the contenders for honors in the smaller sections. Will Huiley, one of Beveridge's able lieutenants was a king headquarters for supplies on Saturday so that his troops must be making steady advances as the drive progresses.

Congress Hill, Bald Hill and Surveyor

Kyle Murray, Andy Montileth, Rebecca Smith and Dr. Lewis are the aides de camp of the chairman for these places and the way these folks are laying down barages and shooting the big ones is a caution to snakes. They claim that they have good reason to believe that this territory will gain more ground in this drive than in the former effort which is sure some good work.

McGarvey's Ridge

Tom McGarvey is commander-in-chief of the forces elected to make this sector 100 per cent liberal. Tom reports everything quiet with considerable ground-gaining the order for the day.

Five Points

Rev. M. M. Snyder, Mrs. Thurston and Albert McGarvey are all going through the enemy lines and are quietly taking position after position as the present drive advances. In their last communique they claim to have routed the enemy and are placing themselves in the first line trenches where they will hold on in the endeavor to be right there when the totals are in.

East Ridge and Harmony

There was a meeting of the clan here and they decided to tell the Hun what they thought of him by slapping the dollars right down to aid the boys through "the greatest Mother of them all". When these good folks get their Harmony disturbed by the idea of the boys being in need they have a method of making the sweetest harmony that could be heard in the ears of the local headquarters.

Burnside and Stüertown

Miss Minnie McCaule who had command of this sector has been unavoidably absent during this drive but headquarters secured the services of Miss Mary Patrick who has buckled her armor on and the enemy may as well consider himself, herself or itself routed right now. Miss Mary is right there with the hustle and will have some great little report to hand in at the completion of the drive.

Faunce

General Archie Moyer marshalled his cohorts and told them what was what when the drive first started. Archie must be some little "teller" for the reports coming in are gratifying indeed. Just a little more pep up that way and Faunce will be among the leaders.

Bigler

Down here in this little brick town, the game has been going on for some time and W. D. Walker is at the bat. He is sure some hitter and his average is being fattened up some by the aides de camp of the chairman for showing he and his team are making in this game. They are putting last year's figures way back in the book and working for something this year that will be a mark for some one to shoot at in years to come.

West Decatur

This busy town comonly talked of as Blue Ball is raising some dust as the drive passes along. In every one of the industrial plants the men have taken to the day's wage plan like the proverbial duck to water. The townsfolk meaning, of course, the

PRESIDENT WILSON VISITS CONGRESS AND ASKS QUICK ACTION ON TAX BILL

Washington, May 27.—President Wilson's war finance policy contemplates raising 40 per cent. for revenue by taxation and 60 per cent. by bonds, it was learned today. A memoranda written by the President and given to Senator Simmons and Representative Kitchen suggested this proposition to finance the war. The tax bill would raise 4 million more than the present one and would augur a six billion bond issue in the fall.

By Robert J. Bender

Washington, May 27.—President Wilson today called upon Congress to sacrifice political expediency and draft a tax bill. Appearing before a joint session on Washington's hottest day of the year the President found an audience of seons distinctly disgruntled at the prospect of prespiring over a revenue measure this summer. It was the second strictly business message the President has delivered before Congress since we got into the war.

The President declared that we are at the peak and crisis of the war and that the people are ready and willing to bear any burdens and to undergo any sacrifices necessary to win. Politics, he said, are adjourned and the coming election will go to those who think least about them. Profiteering that cannot be gotten at by a tax, the President declared. He said that America's greatest bond issue will be floated next fall.

good women who can always be depended on to do their utmost, are answering the appeal as they always do and the reports from here are sweet music down at headquarters.

McGees Mills

The way this one William McGee is taking a shot at that unspeakable other Bill via the Red Cross shows that OUR Bill is some sharpshooter. On Saturday Will asked for a meeting and as we close up this story the headquarters are planning a meeting up at the Mills.

Little question about McGees Mills reaching its quota—it's just a problem of how much over they can turn in. That's the way they're working here.

Clover Run and Newtonburg

You ought to hear some of the reports that General Alex Caldwell and his able lieutenants, Annibaldi and Appel are turning in from here. They must be working night and day up there. Never has such enthusiasm been shown in any cause and these men are leaving nothing undone to make this drive something that will go down in history as a memorable occasion.

TIPS FROM THE TICKER...

New York, May 27.—Rails were higher and industrials lower at the opening of the stock market today. United States steel was off 5-8 to 106 1/2 and Baldwin locomotives was off 1-2 at 90 1-2. Losses followed announcement that President Wilson will address congress on revenue legislation this afternoon. Rails lost the early gains. Losses in industrials ran from 1 to about 3 points.

FARMERS AND WAR DRIVES

In a recent issue The Progress printed a news story reciting as an example the refusal of a Lawrence township farmer to contribute to the Second War Fund Drive. It has come to our notice that some of the farmers of this district object to that article and investigation of the complaint discloses the fact that the objection is based on the paragraph which reads as follows:

"While there are a few specimens of this kind hereabouts there are a lot of other fellows who think they are doing a personal favor when they come across with a measly two or five dollar subscription."

In the beginning let us explain that the simple fact that the subject of our story was a farmer is indeed no reflection on the farmers of this community. We know hundreds of them who have given "until it hurts" and many more who gave just what the committee suggested that they should give. On the other hand we know lots of men, including farmers, who really are making a greater sacrifice by giving a dollar than his neighbor who gives ten dollars.

It was not our intention to criticize or embarrass the man who could give only two or five dollars but there are a few who argued and parried with the committees for as long as twenty minutes and then expected a "God bless you" when they finally condescended to pass over a five dollar bill.

There is no longer any room or time for argument on the matter of these war drives. Every man should have his own mind made up in anticipation of the solicitor and this decision should be one that will insure peace and quiet when one lies down at night and ponders over the acts of the day. Regardless of printed or spoken word the man who can lie down at night and satisfy his own conscience is the one who has done all that he could.

HOUSEWIVES

Many times we have heard the good housewives of this community wonder what they are going to do with all the flour substitutes that they must buy in order to get wheat flour. Others we are sorry to say, are feeding the substitutes to the chickens and to the stock. This practice is worse than a lack of patriotism and we only hope for the day when it will be a criminal offense to do so. There are ways in which every pound of wheat flour substitute can be used and used to advantage. Thousands of families are now doing it and more than that there are thousands of families who are buying no wheat flour and using all substitutes. Ignorance or a willful refusal to learn to bake and cook by war methods and war standards are the only causes of a condition where the housewife does not know what to do with the substitutes she buys. This, as has been the case with other statements made in this column, may be insulting to those who have not obeyed the spirit of the food rulings but it is fact and if you do not believe it we can only suggest that you go to the Cooking and Baking Demonstration sponsored by Lauderbach-Zerby, wholesale grocers of this city. This firm sells practically all the groceries used in this city and they are very anxious to see every pound of substitute used to "win the war".

HEARD FINE SERMON PHEASANTS MUST BE RELEASED

Larimer Post G. A. R. attended services at the Lutheran church yesterday were regaled with a fine sermon by Rev. C. W. Baker, the pastor. The fast thinning ranks of "the brave boys in blue" were sadly recalled to the church people when but ten grey-haired old veterans appeared in the line-up.

SWEENEY WINS BY OFFICIAL COUNT SHOWS JONES TO BE WINNER FOR CONGRESS

The official count shows that Mr. H. H. Sweeney of Houtzdale, is the victor for the county chairmanship of the Republican party by a margin of 19 votes out of a total of 3581 cast. It gives us pleasure to be able to print a picture of the man who is to direct the political campaign for the Republican party this fall. Mr. Sweeney is a courteous and able gentleman and we predict that under his leadership this county will roll up a great Republican majority this fall which will place Clearfield county in the ranks of solid, rock ribbed Republican counties.

HEINZ PLEADS FOR ELIMINATION OF FANCY DINNERS

Philadelphia, May 27.—Howard Heinz, federal food administrator for Pennsylvania, made an emphatic statement yesterday regarding the waste of food which he believes may occur in too many instances, in private homes through elaborate dinner parties, and at public entertainments in the shape of costly banquets. He said:

"At intervals for months past, I have read in the columns of the daily newspapers of the state accounts of elaborate private entertainments, the way of luncheons, dinners and similar functions in which there doubtless is, in at least some instances, a great and unnecessary waste. The food is often prepared and served on such occasions in such a way that it is practically impossible to utilize any of the remains of the banquet or make available for use the food in any other form."

"Our people should refrain from elaborate dinners and social entertainments where costly meals are a feature. This class of social functions should be marked by wartime simplicity. In all things there should be strict observance of food administration rules. The number of extra meals should be minimized. They are, for the most part, unnecessary. We are at war. The families of England have meat only twice a week. In France the population between 15 and 60 years of age is permitted to have only one and a half slices of bread per day per person. To win the war we must not only preach conservation but practice it."

"I am not opposing the idea of private dinners, public banquets or social functions, but I insist that wartime simplicity should prevail at them by moderation in the number of courses served. I urge upon our people that dinner, luncheon and banquet should be an example to the world of rigid conservation of food. Portions should be smaller. They should be prepared and served in accordance with food laws. Articles of diet not on the restricted list should be used."

"At commercial and business gatherings an example should be set and a menu in accordance with the strict requirements of the war-times in which we live be offered."

Food waste is a crime. It is a crime against the starving millions of Europe, who are asking us for food; it is a crime against our soldiers and the soldiers of our allies, who are fighting for us on the battle fields of Europe."

Finland Has Right to Be Welcomed Among the World's Republics—Its Great National Epic.

Finland of today is a prosperous and rapidly developing country, inhabited by an enterprising, progressive and hospitable people. The population is, roughly speaking, 2,000,000. Dairy farming has become one of the most important industries. It is more profitable than the raising of grains because of the uncertainty of the seasons. There is absolutely no reason why the republic of Finland should not be a success, if left undisturbed by more powerful and ambitious neighbors. The people are intelligent, democratic and frugal, and have had enough experience in self-government to be of great help in solving the various perplexing problems that are sure to arise. There is no logical reason why they should be subjects of Slavic Russia. Hence the republic of Finland should be welcomed among nations of the world.

We are indebted to Finnish literature for the inspiration of one of our great poems by one of our sweetest singers, Nordin O. Winter writes in the Christian Herald. Without a written literature, there was handed down from father to son for many generations in Finland a great national epic. In the long winter evenings the singers sat beside the burning pine logs and there sang snatches from this epic. Finally there appeared one Elias Lonnrot, a simple country physician, who traveled over the country and collected this unwritten epic from the memories of hundreds of these singers. He called the collection the Kalevala and it was first published in 1835. Longfellow copied the style in his "Hiawatha."

IRREPARABLE LOSS TO WORLD

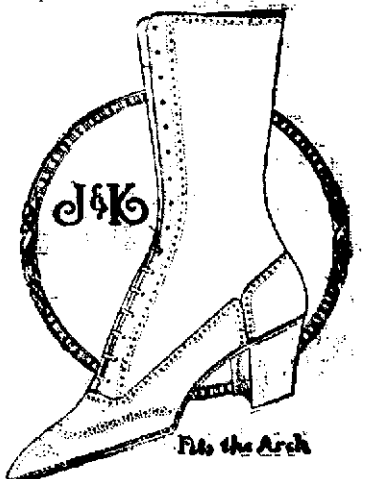

Literary Treasures Destroyed by the Flood at Louvain Can Never Be Replaced.

No reparation can restore to the world the galleries where Charles V. ruler of almost all Europe, poured over old learning, asserts the Toronto Mail and Empire. There is no way to replace the 250,000 manuscripts which went up in smoke and ashes on Aug. 27, 1914. Mankind is permanently poorer by the destruction of complete sets of all sixteenth-century editions of Virgil, nineteen sixteenth-century editions of Terence, ten of Sallust, complete sixteenth-century editions of Tacitus, Seneca, Martial, Ovid, Horace, Juvenal, Livy, Lucian, Lactantius, Cicero and Caesar. Rare copies of Aristotle and the inextinguishable Greeks are lost forever; priceless early Bibles, whole libraries of ecclesiastical history and civil laws, texts illuminated and initiated and bordered by the patient labor of Spanish, German and Lombard monks. "Here was the truth regarding the Spanish Conquest and the grip of the Inquisition." There were authentic treasures also.

IRELAND AND HER TROUBLES

New York, May 27.—The latest attempted uprising in Ireland brings once again into the limelight that land of saints and martyrs, of heroes who have never hesitated to shed their blood in the sacred cause of liberty, and whose magnificent fighting qualities have been displayed on many a bloody field where British arms have triumphed.

Prompted by the machinations of Germany, the several Irish uprisings since the beginning of the present war, including the rebellion which drenched Dublin in blood two years ago, appear to be foredoomed to failure like the similar outbreaks in the past, owing to misguided leaders and the lack of united sentiment among the Irish people themselves.

The first great Irish rebellion occurred in 1798. The leading figure in it was the misguided patriot, Napper Tandy, the hero of that popular ballad, "The Wearing of the Green." Tandy, accompanied by General Rey, a French officer who was to lead the Irish people when they flocked to the standard of revolt, landed near Arvan with 45 French soldiers and a quantity of arms. Instead of joining the invaders, the Irish peasantry fled to the mountains, and thus ended the attempted deliverance of Ireland.

No greater success attended Smith O'Brien's "rebellion" in 1848. O'Brien gathered a multitude of followers, who ultimately attacked a body of police near Ballinacorney. The police put the disorganized peasants to flight, and with this fiasco the "insurrection" ended.

Another abortive rising of the same kind was associated with the expedition of John F. Kavanagh in 1867. It consisted of a brigantine, the Jackel, with a force of 40 or 50 Irishmen who had served in the Federal armies during the American civil war, and with about 5,000 rifles and a few field guns.

The Jackel left New York and arrived safely off the coast of Donegal, where she was boarded by a Fenian, who brought the discouraging news that a general rising was hopeless. So most members of the force returned to New York. The others were landed by a fishing-boat at the entrance to Dungarvan Bay, where all were arrested a few days later. Two of the men, on being tried for treason, proved that, though born in Ireland, they were naturalized Americans, and as such could not be tried for or convicted of treason. But they were nevertheless convicted and sentenced to long terms, the court holding that the English law did not recognize the right of any person to transfer his allegiance to another country. In consequence of a protest by the United States Government, however, both men were ultimately sent back to America.

Wolfe Tone's effort to rouse his countrymen were also, pitiable failures. In 1798 this famous leader, in company with General Hoche, sailed from Brest at the head of a considerable expedition, consisting of 6,500 troops and large quantities of arms and ammunition. The fleet, with the exception of one ship, reached Hantury Bay, but before Tone and his followers could land a storm sprang up, and eventually the invaders found themselves back again at Brest.

Subsequently a larger expedition left France—one of the most disastrous that ever sailed for Ireland. After being chased by a British squadron, and failing to land troops, it was brought into action off Bloody Foreland, with the result that nearly the whole of it was captured. Among those taken was Wolfe Tone, who was tried, convicted of treason and sentenced to be hanged. But he escaped this ignominious end. When in prison he cut his throat with a penknife, and died a week later.

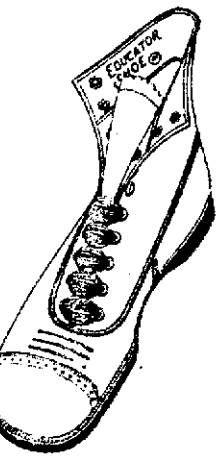

Similar disaster attended the Emmet rebellion of 1803, the plans of which were adopted by the Sinn Feiners in 1916. For Emmet provided for street fighting in Dublin and made his chief objective the Castle. The uprising proved a total failure. Emmet paid the price of his folly on the scaffold. Yet he lives in the hearts of Irishmen, and wherever they are, whether in their own fair isle or far overseas, his name thrills them to the soul.

An advertisement appeared recently in the London newspapers inviting capital towards the foundation of a school for teaching women to fly.

BRITISH RESENT TRIBUTE PAID TO ENEMY FLYER

(By United Press)
London, May 27.—Baron Richtofen's military funeral behind the British lines and the tribute which British airmen accorded their dead nemesis have aroused some resentment in England.

Although Richtofen is regarded as having been a gallant enemy and a courageous fighter, his disinclination to honor the enemy, even to death, is more emphatic in his case than it has been in the cases of others just because Richtofen's career and death were unusually spectacular. His fame thus attracted more attention than the usual burial of a fallen enemy aviator, and the consequent objection is in proportion.

"If the Germans were gallant adversaries and gentlemen we wouldn't be fighting them," says one critic. "We would be able to come to terms with them. A gallant aviator would not try to stab us in the back, and a gentleman would keep his agreements."

"The Germans are not gallant adversaries. Frightfulness is their weapon. Lying is the inspiration of their diplomacy. We are fighting them because they are not gentlemen. 'Are we to waste our tears on the individuals who perish in trying to bring about the triumph of hate?'"

If Richtofen's successor is brought down he probably will have the same honors that the dead German ace has received, because the soldier in the field is the man who accords the honors while the critic at home merely makes suggestions. It has happened before.

Once some dead German sailors were brought ashore after a fight with some British destroyers. They were buried with honors, and a wreath from a British admiral called them a "Brave and Gallant Enemy." There was some indignation in England, but it got nowhere.

Richtofen was buried with the honors that men who had fought him chose to accord to him.

BANANAS DID IT!

(By United Press)
Columbus, O., May 27.—Credit bananas with one good fighter for Uncle Sam.

Walter Sheppard, 15, has succeeded in passing the physical examination for enlistment in the marine corps, although a few days ago he couldn't pass it.

After Walter had obtained the consent of his parents, he still had a hard fight ahead. He was several pounds too light to be admitted to the marines.

"Bananas will increase your weight," he was told, and he went in for bananas.

The first day he ate two dozen, the next day a dozen and a half, and the next day one dozen. Four pounds were gained. The patriotic grocer from whom he bought the fruit became interested, and gave the boy twice as many bananas as he gave other customers for the same price.

Friends held banana parties for the young patriot.

Walter carefully refrained from exercise that might reduce his weight, drank water and cream in wholesale quantities, and weighed many times a day. When the scales showed that the correct weight had been reached, he drank some more water, and set out for the recruiting station, eating bananas.

Now he has passed, and he's thru with bananas forever!

FOR BETTER ROADS

IMPROVING THE BAD SPOTS

Certain Small Ruts That Are Usually Wet and Soft Determine Load Farmer Can Carry.

The worst holes in the road always determine the load the farmer can market. No stretch of roadway is uniformly good, because every road has certain small spots that are usually soft and wet. These spots cause more trouble than the rest of the road combined. How these spots are to be improved depends on the character of the soil, and the nature of the country. Many such spots owe their character to a soft subsoil, due to springs. Before these roads can be permanently improved they must be underdrained. If a tile is laid in these places there will usually be no trouble in the future. The surface of the road should then be filled with dirt and crowned, so any surface water may run off. If this is done there will be no trouble from subsurface water.

Many roadways that are closed in with shade trees are bad. If a goodly portion of the scrub timber along these roads be removed, the ground will dry out and no trouble result. If the character of the soil is soft and pliable, so that it will not pack and remain firm, new material should be applied to the surface. The best and cheapest material for improving roads is gravel. Where gravel beds are accessible a day's work with a team and wagon will improve any roadbed permanently. If the soil is very sandy an 8-inch application of clay to the surface will effect wonders. The road patrol should spend a considerable portion of its time in remedying the bad spots in the road.

ANSWER TO PRISON PROBLEM

New York and Other States Have Tried Experiment of Using Convicts to Improve Roads.

New York and many of the Southern and Western states have tried the experiment of using convicts to improve highways—and it has worked to perfection. The official organ of the New York state prisoners says that "no man of all the inmates who went outside last year had a word of fault to find with his treatment. All are anxious to join these camps again. The freedom of movement and the excise shortens the time yet to do in a wonderful manner. Many states have found road work to be the answer to the prison problem. Colorado and California have rebuilt the better portion of their roads with prison labor, and besides feeding the inmates with an extra supply of food, it has also led to a lessening of time through provisions made by the farsighted legislators.

WIDE TIRES IMPROVE ROADS

They Have Same Effect on Country Highway as Roller on Field—Also Pull Easier.

Wide tires build up roads and save horse labor. They have the same effect upon a country road as a roller on a plowed field. On the other hand, the narrow tire cuts up a road like a disk. It has been found by actual test in this matter that the wide-tired wagon pulls easier in nearly all cases than the narrow-tired wagon. In deep mud on a country road the wide-tired wagon pulls 6.2 per cent easier. On the country road with a thin surface of mud or deep dust, however, the narrow tires pull 4.9 per cent easier. In a cornfield the wide tires pull 39.5 per cent easier, in a dry alfalfa field 17.7 per cent easier, and on a dry country road 10.2 per cent easier.

Ontario Makes Good Roads. The Province of Ontario has approximately 55,000 miles of roads. More than 40,000 miles have been treated and are in fairly good condition. About 20,000 miles are well graded, mostly about 3,000 miles are surfaced with broken stone, and about 10,000 are surfaced with gravel.

All Roads Lead Home. All roads lead to home. You are not at fault if they are not good roads, but you are to blame if it's not a good home.

Ten that are wanted in New York City are to be held in a woman's police reserve corps.

HOW ABOUT THAT STRAWBERRY BED?

Because growers rarely see their fruits in the market they do not realize how much disease injures the keeping quality of strawberries, nor how it reduces returns to grower, shipper and merchant, and increases cost to the consumer. No plant diseases cause more serious losses than those which start decay in ripe fruits, destroying food produced at great expense. A careful study of strawberry fruit diseases, carried on for the last three years, shows that dry rot may be largely reduced by means within the reach of every grower, according to C. R. Orton, of the Pennsylvania State College.

Dry rot is a field trouble caused by gray mould. It is particularly common and destructive on fields which are usually wet, either from excessive rain or poor drainage.

This disease gives the berries a rather firm and somewhat discolored appearance. Berries of any age, green or ripe, may be attacked on the vines and the gray powdery mold is frequently seen growing on the outside of the berry. Not only berries, but at times leaf stems and blossoms, are affected by this fungus.

Although the gray mould grows rather slowly on ripe berries, and is not particularly important after picking, it may become very conspicuous through its ability to grow at refrigerator-car temperature. Its ability to develop on the top of the head makes it noticeable when the car is being examined by buyers, and often reduces the price.

Proper field drainage is the best method of control, and this disease can be further eliminated by discarding diseased berries after picking, says Mr. Orton.

FLY A CLEAN FLAG

By Edgar A. Guest
 "I heard the Old Flag say,
 As I passed it yesterday:
 Months ago your friendly hands
 Fastened me on slender strands
 And with patriotic love
 Placed me here to wave above
 You and yours, I heard you say
 In the long-departed day:
 One of all that's true and fine
 Above this house of mine;
 The first at break of day
 And the last at night to say
 To the world this word of cheer:
 Loyalty abideth here.

On every wind that's blown
 Over your portal I have flown;
 Rain and snow have battered me;
 Storms at night have battered me;
 Dust of street and chimney stack,
 Day by day, have stained me black,
 And I've watched you passing there,
 Wondering how much you care.
 Have you noticed that your flag,
 Is today a wind-blown rag?
 Has your love so careless grown
 By the long neglect you've shown
 At you never raise your eye
 To the symbol that you fly?"

On which no stain has been,
 My sign that you're unclear,
 I've answered in my shame,
 My head must lie the blame.
 With patriotic hands,
 Release you from your strands,
 And a spotless flag shall fly
 To greet each passerby.
 No more shall flag of mine
 Be a sad and sorry sign
 Telling all who look above,
 I neglect the thing I love,
 And my flag of faith shall be
 Fit for every eye to see.

THE KETTLE'S TROUBLE.

"It's a perfect shame," said the kettle on the stove.

The Horrid Kettle Burned Her.

"What's a perfect shame?" asked the frying pan which was hanging on a hook beside the stove. "The child blamed it all on me," the kettle answered.

"What child blamed it on you, and what do you mean by it?" asked the frying pan.

"There, there!" said the water in the kettle, "don't get excited. I've said before it was that child and tell her so. I don't know real talk, I don't. I can sputter when I'm boiling, and bubble and slag. And when I'm free and not in the kettle I can do lots more. But talking is not one of the things I can do."

"Of course," said the frying pan, "we're interested to know what you can do, but we would like to hear what the kettle is angry about."

"I'm not angry," said the kettle. "I'm hurt. My poor porcelain feelings are most dreadfully hurt."

"Tell us all about it," said the frying pan. "It will make you feel better."

"Yes," said the water in the kettle, "tell your kitchen friends all about it. They're used to being dropped and burnt and they don't mind much of anything. Tell them this story and they'll feel sorry for you and will also cheer you up. You're becoming entirely too unhappy about this whole affair."

"Wouldn't you become unhappy if you had been accused of something you weren't responsible for?"

"I'm really to be sympathized with more than you. I was the guilty one," said the water.

"Please, please," called the frying pan.

"Yes," said the pancake turner, "don't talk among yourselves any more. Let us hear what it's all about."

"Go on with your story," said the water in the kettle. "The kitchen friends are weary of these delays."

"That's right, we are," agreed the frying pan.

"All right," said the kettle. "I'll tell you all what has hurt my feelings, and I'm sure you will all agree with me that your feelings would be hurt too if you were in my place."

"We've often been in your place," said the frying pan. "We go on the stove too when the meats are being cooked. And you're no special place. We're all shovelled around wherever the cook wants to put us. So there!"

"I mean," said the kettle sadly, "that if you had been in my place regarding my feelings and not my position on the stove."

"Oh, our feelings have been hurt too," said the frying pan, and the pancake turner agreed. "We've had everything imaginable happen to us."

"Let the kettle tell the story," said the water.

"Are you cool and calm now?" asked the kettle of the water.

"Quite cool," said the water. "But you mustn't blame me because I couldn't help being so hot. It was the fault of the fire. It made me get so warm and excited that I bubbled over."

"There! Now you're blaming us," said the fire. "I couldn't help it if they put sticks and coal and paper in me. They built me up so I would go."

"It's not our fault," said the sticks and coal and paper. "Without the match we couldn't have gone."

"Mean of you to blame me," said the match. "And besides I couldn't have lit it if it hadn't been for the cook who struck me on the side of the box."

"We still don't know what the trouble is," said the frying pan. "Stop abusing each other and tell us."

"A child," said the kettle, "tried to move me and in so doing she spilled some of the boiling water over herself."

"I wasn't quite boiling," said the water. "Very near boiling I was, though."

"Don't interrupt," said the kettle. "You've caused me enough trouble. Well, the child got quite badly burned. It hurt awfully, for burns always do."

"Yes," said the butter, from the ice box in the corner of the kitchen, "she came to me to be comforted. Butter is excellent for burns."

"But she blamed me for burning her," said the kettle. "She said that 'the horrid old kettle burned her,' and it wasn't me at all."

And the water, fire, paper, sticks, coal and match each in turn said they were not to blame but only the cook was for starting the fire in the first place!

IRISH JOAN OF ARC ARRESTED

Maude Gonne McBride, who is reported under arrest by the British authorities, is generally known as the Irish Joan of Arc, owing to her remarkable and incessant fight for Irish liberty.

Mrs. McBride is the widow of Maor McBride, who was executed two years ago for participating in the Dublin uprising. It is said that at one time, had she so chose, she might have become Lady Kitchener.

The story is that Lord Kitchener met the fair Irish maid in Paris while returning from Egypt. He was smitten by her charms and sued for her hand. She accepted on condition that he would put aside his uniform in the English army and join her in her fight for free Ireland. It is scarcely necessary to add that the famous soldier would not agree to the conditions.

WHY THAT HEAVY MAIL

Somewhere in France, May 27.—Letter writing has become all the rage among the wounded U. S. Marines confined to the base hospitals here.

The reason is a French stenographer, a pretty one, too, who has volunteered to write letters home for her incapacitated American brothers.

The petite Parisienne makes a daily visit to the Marine hospitals for dictation—and the wounded devil dogs have suddenly become literary giants. They anxiously await her visits and fairly swamp her with mail.

"Gee, if I only had about three more aunts and six more cousins to write to," sighed one husky sea-soldier, as the pretty little "steno" moved on to the next cot.
